

JOB DESCRIPTION

The Graduate School of Journalism and Communication of the Sorbonne University (CELSA) seeks an articulate and experienced native-English-speaking researcher to play a key role in curricular development and teaching in association with its languages department and degree programs.

The Graduate Fellowship position will be composed of 10-12 hours of work per week during the 2022-2023 academic year. Coursework will be based on a combination of teaching (classroom and tutorial settings) and research on innovative forms of pedagogy and topics related to communications and/or journalism, to further the fellow's professional development. Fellows will also present research and results to the academic community at the School at least once during the year-long fellowship. The monthly stipend for the position is €1,256.12 (after taxes) for the 12-month period based on a Contrat de Lecteur in the French national education system.

Ideal candidates will possess proven knowledge of the Media and Communication Science in an effort to promote a cross-cultural understanding of the field to students and colleagues. The candidate must possess excellent written and spoken communication skills in English. Successful candidates will be at an advantage if they are able to communicate in French. An advanced university degree, some teaching experience and specific research experience would also be assets.

APPLICATION PROCEDURE

All candidates wishing to apply should send:

- a CV (in French)
- the highest university degree (with French translation)
- a letter describing the research/project to be pursued while a fellow and how scholarship will be furthered at CELSA and with its research group (GRIPIC)
- two samples of their scholarship, course syllabi and teaching evaluations (if available)
- a letter of reference to the University

All inquiries and applications should be directed to Lisa Bolz: lisa.bolz@sorbonne-universite.fr

Applications must be received before April 3rd, 2022. All applicants will be contacted by end of May 2022. CELSA's policy is to employ the best qualified personnel, while providing equal opportunity for the advancement of employees and not to discriminate against any person because of any condition or requirement which cannot be shown to be justified. All applications are dealt with fairly and properly in line with our policies and procedures.

CELSA

A graduate school at the Sorbonne University, CELSA offers degree programs in Journalism, Institutional Communications, Marketing + Advertising, Media, Communications Management and Human Resources. It awards an Undergraduate Degree (Licence), Master's Degrees (Research and Professional tracks) and an MBA in addition to Magistère and Doctorate Degrees. CELSA has pioneered interactive teaching since its creation in 1957. The trademark of the school is its foothold in academic and professional worlds, demonstrated by its pedagogical supervision, international outreach and placement of graduates in their chosen professions through internship and work-placement programs. More at www.celsa.fr.